Maloney Announces $131,998 CETA Grant

Supt. John Maloney informed the School Committee this week that Cohasset had been awarded a CETA Special Training Program grant for $131,998.

The grant, which becomes effective this week until March 14 next year, will employ and train 10 individuals in custodial and maintenance areas of the school. These employees are entitled to all the benefits of regular employees, Maloney said, and will not interfere with regular personnel shifts or the hiring of summer help.

Maloney said the head custodians will be serving as supervisors in the training of the new employees, nine of which have already been interviewed and hired by Business Manager John Raferty. Raferty said that their jobs will include carpentry, ceiling and roof repair, retiling floors and painting as well as other custodial duties.

The committee commended Maloney on the application and award of the grant. Raferty will submit a detailed plan of supervision for the workers.

Sewage System Conference

A South Shore conference on innovative sewage systems will be held in Cohasset March 31 from 9:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. at St. Stephen's Church.

Speakers for the conference, which is open to all South Shore residents, will outline case histories of several New England towns which solved their sewage problems unconventionally.

Funding and regulating innovative systems will be explained by speakers representing the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) and the Department of Environmental Quality Engineering. New techniques to extend the life of an on-lot system will also be explained.

In addition, exhibits sponsored by companies manufacturing innovative systems will be displayed.
